Workers At Mass Meetings Cheer Edict of National Board

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, April 11.—Republic
Steel Corp. prepared today to fight orders of the National Labor Relations Board and union workers planned demands for reemployment.
T. M. Girdler, chairman of Republic's board, issued a statement saying that at least part of the labor board's orders would be taken to court and that the company will "take advantage of all rights under the law." The company will rehire strikers, however, it said.
Mass meetings of workers in Cleveland, Warren and Youngstown hailed with cheers, whistling and applause the labor board's order to the company to reemploy
strikers.
The Steel Workers' Organizing Committee (CIO) scheduled another meeting in Cleveland tonight.
Leaders told all meetings to "sit tight" and await orders from national headquarters.
Debate Re-Employment Plan
James P. Miller, labor board regional director here, said he would be willing to meet with company representatives and said he believed it possible to gather names of 5,000
strikers in Cleveland, Warren, Youngstown, Canton and Massillon
and work out a plan for reemploy-
ment.
The labor board found Republic Steel Corp. guilty of violating the "major Labor Act" in a "long series of unfair labor practices."
The company's statement claimed that "insistence by the CIO" upon a signed contract "precipitated the strike in 'Little Steel' last summer."
Girdler's statement said in part:
"Republic refused to sign the CIO contract because, among other reasons, we knew that the majority of our men were opposed and violent tactics convinced us that its leadership was irresponsible.
We are convinced the board's decision is wrong that the company must not negotiate with its employees who have formed their own independent labor organizations."
Up to the Courts
The courts will have to decide
this question.
We are desirous of reestablishing our employees who have not worked since the strike as soon as possible.
However, it is astounding that the labor board should direct re-employment of employees who were guilty of violence.
The board takes the company to task for openly and publicly stating its position on issues of the strike.
I do not believe the courts will permit the labor board to nullify the right of free speech.
No immediate announcement can be made as to the exact procedure which the company will adopt to reemploy its employees in their rights and to preserve the rights of the company. We will, however, take full advantage of all rights to which the company and its employees are entitled under the law."

Record Vote Turnout
Gives Anschluss Tremendous Majority
BERLIN, April 11.—The greatest turnout of voters in German history gave Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler the biggest majority of his career in Sunday's Anschluss plebiscite.
Nearly 50,000,000 men and women marched to the ballot box or were carried there, or had the ballot box carried to them if they were ill.
Of these, 48,799,289 voted "yes" in approval of Germany's annexation of Austria. There were 452,180 "no" votes and 75,342 were classified as invalid.
Sets High Mark
The percentage of "yes" votes was 92.027, as compared with 98.79
achieved in the Rhineland remil-itarization plebiscite of March, 1936, when 44,952,476 Germans voted
"yes."
The highest pitch of affirmative
expression was reached in Austria, where the voters gladdened the fuehrer's heart with a 99.75 per cent
"yes" vote.
The unofficial complete vote for Austria alone was 4,270,517 yes, and 11,263 in the negative.
With the counting completed,
there were rumors of a sweeping political amnesty—Hitler's gesture of benevolence and gratitude. But there was no official confirmation.
Some persons, especially in Vienna, feared the aftermath might be strong action against former Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's enthusiasts and the Jews.
The vote, held less than a month after Hitler's armed forces marched into Austria, culminated an energetic Nazis drive to stir popular enthusiasm. Jews were not allowed to vote.
Hitler's Proudest Hour
Hitler declared in a nation-wide broadcast that "this hour is the proudest of my life."
Contrary to general expectation,
Nazi spokesmen said, the new reichstag will not be summoned to Vienna for its first session on Hitler's 49th birthday, April 20. On the contrary, considerable time may elapse.
According to German law, there is one reichstag member for every 60,000
yes votes cast yesterday.
Germans and Austrians, in voting, cast their ballots "for the list of Adolf Hitler" and left it to the fuehrer to select from this list of 1,117 candidates the enlarged reichstag of approximately 740 Germans and 70 Austrian members.

Roosevelt Will Request
Seven-Month Relief Fund
Of Billion and A Quarter Proposed Appropriation Will Be Recommended In Special Message to Congress; Additional Money
For CCC To Be Sought

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, April 11.—President Roosevelt and congressional and departmental leaders agreed today a $1-250,000,000 appropriation would be needed for work relief for the first seven months of the fiscal year beginning July 1.
The appropriation, to be recommended in a special message to congress in the next few days, would be for WPA alone. It compares with a budget estimate of $1,000,000,000, submitted to congress in January to cover the entire new fiscal year and $1,500,000,000 being spent for WPA and other relief activities this fiscal year.

Salem and Lisbon
Bands Win Honors
In Kent Contests
Salem High school's band, directed by C. M. Brautigam, tied Akron North for fifth place in the northeastern Ohio district orchestra and band contest Saturday at Kent university. Wooster was first in the Class A division.
The Lisbon High school band,
under the baton of Arthur Wise,
won a "superior" rating in the Class B section and was highest in the sight-reading contest. Lisbon will enter the state finals at Columbus,
April 23.
The Salem band was second in the sight-reading in the Class A contest, receiving an unfamiliar selection, studying it for one minute
and then playing the composition.
The Salem band entered the Class
A division with the odds against it.
While the local aggregation numbers only 53 pieces, the other Class
A bands had at least 90 members.
The East Palestine band won a "very good" rating and the Lisbon
and Kent orchestras, the only ones entered in the meet, received "very good" ratings.

House At Logtown
Destroyed by Fire
LISBON, April 11.—A six-room frame house at Logtown, two miles northwest of Lisbon, was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin at 5
a. m. Sunday.
Mrs. W. M. Butler, her two children and two grandchildren were awakened by the odor of smoke and managed to flee from the house with a few personal belongings and a small amount of household goods.
Mr. Butler, who owned the house,
was away at the time.
Insurance partially covers the loss
which amounted to $1,500.

STARK DEPUTIES

Sebring Man, Driver of Other Car, Held In Jail at Canton
Merle Needham Kline, 20, of 1257
Maple st., known to many as Merle Needham, critically injured when struck by another automobile while attempting to change a tire on Route 62, five miles west of Alliance, at 1 a. m. Saturday, died at 7:06 p. m. Saturday in Alliance City hospital.
Hospital attendants found it necessary to amputate both legs, below the knees, after Kline had been taken to the hospital. The youth also was hurt internally.

Continue Investigation
Meanwhile, Stark county deputy sheriffs and Stark County Coroner
Dr. E. C. Reno today continued their investigation of the accident.
Roy Brooks, 26, of 166 W. Vermont st., Sebring, driver of the car which hit Kline's parked machine, is held in the county jail at Canton. A second degree manslaughter charge was filed against Brooks this morning.
R. R. France, chief Stark county deputy sheriff, yesterday obtained statements from Brooks and the two passengers in his car, Miss Ida Clara Zivitz, 20, of 2029 Watson
ave., Alliance, and Jay Dawson, 18,
of 159 S. 21st st., Sebring.
Deputy France talked on Saturday to Paul Risbeck, 20, of R. D. 1, Salem, who was with Kline at the time of the crash.
According to the officer's report,
Kline and Risbeck had stopped along the highway, just west of the Grey Wolf tavern, to repair a punctured tire. At the time Brooks' machine crashed into the parked car, Kline was standing at the rear of the machine and Risbeck at one side.

Kline, the son of Mrs. A. R.
Stark, 1257 Maple st., was born in Washingtonville Jan. 17, 1918. He attended both the Salem and Washingtonville schools. At the time of his death he was employed at the Cassidy dancing academy.
The funeral service will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Stark Memorial with Rev. George D.
Keister officiating. Burial will be in the Washingtonville cemetery.
The body will be taken to the home on Maple st. where friends
may call tonight.
Investigate Accidents
Salem state highway patrolmen investigated two other traffic accidents over the weekend.
Donald Weaver, 21, of 553 W.
Oregon ave., Sebring, and Robert Beaton, 28, of 245 W. Oregon ave., Sebring, climbed to safety after their automobile upset in the road on the Westville-North Georgetown highway, at 12:30 a. m. Sunday and caught afire. The youths suffered only bruises. The machine was destroyed.
Corp. W. E. Arey and Patrolman
Frank Horvath said the drive shaft of the car, which was driven by Weaver, snapped and the car ran off the road, climbed a 12-foot embankment and then rolled back onto the highway.
Arch Romack, 31, of Warren, escaped injury Sunday afternoon
when his automobile skidded on the Lisbon road, one mile south of Salem, and landed upside down in a ditch.

Senate's "Champ Listener"
May Head TVA Probe Group (WASHINGTON, April 11.—The champion listener in the senate—
Sen. Vic Donahey (D., Ohio)—probably will direct the congressional investigation into the Tennessee Valley Authority.
Senators said today that Vice President Garner unofficially had designated Donahey when he placed the former Ohio governor at the top of five senate members of the committee. Five house members also will serve, but custom gives a senator the chairmanship.
The tall Ohioan, who keeps his gray hair clipped short, usually wears tweeds, and chews gum, has been in the senate nearly five years
without making a speech.
"I may want to talk sometime,"
he said, smiling. "It might even be about TVA. You can learn a lot about other senators by just listening."

Disagree with my President, I don't consort with the enemy or abuse
him. There can be an honest difference between men over policies."
The Ohioan said the TVA inquiry would climax 40 years of public service.
"My senate term ends next year
and then I'm through," he declared.
"I would not even accept the presidency. I'm absolutely a free man.
Nobody owns a hair on my head.
When I'm through here, I'm going to have a little fun."
Much of Donahey's public service
will aid him in the TVA inquiry.
He was Ohio state auditor for five years in charge of inspecting "the accounts of 50,000 public officials."
His first public office was town clerk of New Philadelphia, Ohio. He was county auditor at 27.
"I was so young it almost beat me," he chuckled. "I had to grow a beard—a Van Dyke—to show maturity."
Donahey was a printer by profession and still holds a union card.
He dislikes the limelight and enjoys getting away from a crowd "to whittle and think."
"I composed some of my best messages as governor while whittling," he said.

Southern Tornado and Floods Leave Damage In Their Wake

Above—A householder is shown ruefully surveying the ruins of his home in Aliceville, Ala., where only the walls of the living room remain standing. A tornado tore across Alabama and Mississippi, leaving nine known dead in its wake and injuring scores. Aliceville took the brunt of the blow.
And in Georgia, the trouble was floods. Below is shown part of the debris left after a 23-car freight train was wrecked by a bridge washout in the flood at Fairmount, Ga. Three cars of acid fell into the stream, killing large numbers of livestock which had escaped from the wrecked train.

Three Men Await Trial

Of Gambler
YOUNGSTOWN, April 11.—Three men charged with the gangland killing of Roy "Happy" Marino last September were remanded to county jail today after pleading innocent to first degree murder indictments.
Judge Erskine Maiden Jr., withheld bond privileges after Solly
Hart, 32, of Cleveland, Herb Ross, 35, of Cleveland, and John Anthouilis, 48, of Steubenville, entered individual pleas of innocence.
Counsel for the indicted trio was Attorney John F. Nolan, Steubenville Democratic leader, and Attorney Hugo F. Chestosky, also of Steubenville.
Chestosky said before the arraignment that he was prepared to enter "not guilty" pleas for all three men on the condition that the pleas might be withdrawn later
for technical purposes.
Judge Maiden, assistant prosecutor H. H. Hull, Nolan and Chestosky were to meet this afternoon to set a trial date. Chestosky pleaded for delay on the grounds that both he and Nolan are "tied up"
in Columbus with cases in federal court. They asked that the case not be brought up before April 30.

Fero had been a mental patient
and had been confined under guard

Dr. Townsend Must Serve Jail Term

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Dr.
Francis E. Townsend, author of the Townsend plan to pay $200 a month to the aged, failed in the supreme court today in his effort to escape a 30-day jail sentence imposed for contempt of a house committee.
The tribunal refused to review a decision by the United States court of appeals for the District of Columbia upholding the jail sentence and a $100 fine.
Townsend, 71 years old, walked out of a house committee session on May 21, 1936, after making a statement that the legislators were "unfriendly" and "unfair." He said he did not "propose to come back except under arrest."
He told the supreme court that the United States district court for the District of Columbia, where he was tried, had refused to permit
him to refute government evidence that his departure was prompted by "bad faith or evil intent."

ed "fire."

RECOVERY AND
RELIEF BILLS
TO BE PRESSED

"Reform" Legislation Will

doned

BUSINESS AID

Action Taken Follownig
Defeat of Reorganization Bill

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 11.—President Roosevelt called in his congressional lieutenants today to consider whether to sidetrack some of his legislative program in view of the government reorganization defeat.

Many legislators predicted that the remainder of the congressional session would be devoted to relief and recovery measures, leaving until next year proposals which they classified as "reform."

Wage-Hour Bill Included
In the latter category is the controverial wage-hour bill, whose chances of house consideration
were generally regarded as lessened
by the reorganization defeat. Regional planning legislation and revision of the anti-trust laws undoubtedly will be held over.

Capital observers declared that any administrative measures designed to aid business undoubtedly would receive quick congressional approval, whereas the same general support might not extend to other legislation.

The impression was general that President Roosevelt would carry to the voters the fight for his legislative policies, whether or not they are deferred for another year.
Some Washingtonians predicted he might make a long speaking trip
during the congressional election campaign.

No "Recrimination"
Mr. Roosevelt emphasized in a note to his legislative lieutenants (D-Text.) Democratic floor leader, that there was to be no "personal recrimination" over the vote against reorganization, in which about a third of the Democratic house members joined Republicans.

In the forthcoming primary and general elections, however, President Roosevelt's influence during the remainder of his second term will be measured indirectly at the polls.

Coupled with myriad local and personal issues are national questions to which legislators are looking forward to 1940 will seek answers. They include:

How much has popular support shifted since Mr. Roosevelt's unprecedented 1936 election triumph, and what bearing may it have on possibilities the president might seek a third term?

Has organized labor won a new place in the political sun?

The first primary election will take place tomorrow in Illinois. Reports from that state, however, indicate it will afford little reflection of national controversies which have evoked charges of "dictatorship from administration opponents and brought from Mr. Roosevelt a recent assertion that the people do not want in public office those who "believe in the feudal system."

Republicans, swinging into their national campaign, announced the appointment of Franklin W. Wainman as publicity director. He is political writer on the Washington Post.

Capel gave a recitation, "Friends."
A song, "Little Dutch Mill," was given by Kenwood Gray, Jr., and Rose Marie Walters; Doris Holroyd
gave a trumpet solo, and Nancy Neal a recitation, "Handicaps."

Deborah Beery gave a piano solo, and she and Priscilla Beery gave
"The Old Rugged Cross" as a duet.
The service was closed with a song

LET'S LOOK UNDER THE BED

Americans, for a number of assorted reasons, have grown skittish and afraid. It is a condition like that of 1932 and 1933 when fear was such an important element of depression that President Roosevelt, tackling the job of restoring confidence, said fear was the thing the country had to fear.

He meant there was nothing wrong which was going to be fatal, if people quit thinking the end was at hand. Individually and collectively, Americans would pull through if they believed they were able to pull through. This was Mr. Roosevelt's greatest contribution to recovery—restoration of confidence beginning in 1933.

Today, there is a similar job needing to be done, but it is doubtful if the man in the White House can repeat his performance, though certainly he would lose nothing by trying. The trouble is, whereas in 1933 Americans thought they were going to be led out of adversity into a new Utopia they know today they were kidding themselves. There is no leader anywhere in the world who can dispel adversity by taking a stand against it, nor is there any Utopia to escape to. There is only the world as it is, and it's pretty much as it always has been.

So let's start out by looking under the bed to make sure of two things: First, that there's no bogeyman there, except in imagination; Second, that there's no chest of gold, or Aladdin's lamp, or secret panacea there, either.

Then let's rid our minds of the last vestiges of the notion that Franklin D. Roosevelt can save America, or destroy it either, for that matter, by some combination of magic words. It would be a good trick if anyone could do it; Mr. Roosevelt can't. Apparently, a large part of the population is waiting breathlessly for the new deal to do this or to do that. The fact is that if the new deal were to do both this and that at the same instant, things wouldn't be affected a whit tomorrow, next week, next month, and probably not next year. If that doesn't seem believable, it's been five years since the beginning of the new deal, and with the exception of an addition of 16 billion dollars to the national debt, things aren't much different.

This isn't a plea for loss of faith in political leadership, but for a debunking of the idea that government is the heart, brains and pocketbook of America. The country has gone slightly daffy from concentrating too long on Washington. The first step toward shaking off its jitters—and this is sound psychology—is to get its mind on things it can understand. When that happens, it will begin to see a way out of its troubles.

WITHOUT HUMOR

Germans never have been famous for a sense of humor, a lack which puts them at a disadvantage in a country like this, where the horse laugh is likely to occur in the most unexpected places at the most unexpected times.

Most Americans, for instance, think it's downright funny that the circle for "Yes" on the ballots for the Austrian plebiscite was made four times larger than the circle for "No." They think the statement of the issue is funny, too: "Are you German and do you belong to Germany and its Adolf Hitler?"

Plainly, the Nazis don't stand the ghost of a chance of being misunderstood. It's as though they were being cynically humorous about making the vote come out the way they want it to, so they won't have to take the trouble to stuff the ballot boxes.

The truth is, probably, they aren't being funny at all, or even cynical, but deadly serious. It's something Americans simply can't understand—how adults can be solemn about a burlesque on fairness and reason. But then Germans probably can't understand why Americans can't understand them, so that makes everything even.

TAPERING OFF

Americans, with an exception here and there, don't know much about the Philippine Islands, except that they're far away and would be, therefore, hard to hold in case another country wanted them more than the United States wants them. The dream of empire isn't what it used to be.

But nearly all Americans do understand that tapering off is not a good way to get rid of a habit. The United States for a third of a century has been in the habit. The United States for a third of a century has been in the habit of wanting the Philippine Islands to have and to hold. In 1934, it decided to break the habit and passed a law giving the Philippines political and economic independence by 1946.

Now, by agreement between Presidents Roosevelt and Quezon, the islands are going to continue to enjoy preferential trade relationships until 1960. In view of the fact President Quezon, himself, has said political independence in 1946 isn't desirable either. It seems proper to assume the habit of wanting the Philippines now has been firmly reestablished.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, April 12

A very lively day, with the energies under high pressure, is forecast from the predominant planetary directions. It is a favorable time for endeavoring to launch important projects, although there may be necessary upheavals and excitement in putting over such plans. Use caution and vigilance in dealing with rings, mergers or secret organizations.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of much progress and prosperity, especially in connection with new enterprises and in developing new plans and objectives. These enterprises seem important and may attract the co-operation of large corporations, mergers or secret bodies.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, practical, zealous and determined. It may also have a gentle, kindly and lovable nature that should assure it a successful and happy life.

Too Much Jungle

Dorothy Copp Mitchell-Hedges is pictured at Lakewood, N. J., after she turned to the courts for legal separation from her famous explorer-husband, F. A. Mitchell-Hedges. Dorothy said that her honeymoon in the jungles, exciting while being planned, was distasteful when put into execution. Her husband is in England.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland, New York City.

MALTA FEVER

Malta fever is so called because it was first encountered on the island of Malta. It is believed, too, that the disease was confined to the Mediterranean area and for this reason was often referred to as Mediterranean fever. Sometimes it is called Gibraltar fever, rock fever, Neapolitan fever, Cyprus fever or Brucellosis.

As a matter of fact, the disease is seen in other sections of the world, notably in North America, Asia and Europe. In this country it is more frequently known as undulant fever. No matter what name is used for it, the disease is caused by a germ known as the "micrococcus melitensis." By most authorities, too, it is believed this germ is identical with the "bacillus abortus." At first the germ was believed to be present only in the milk of infected animals. But later it was discovered that the germs are to be found in the flesh of diseased cattle.

Undulant fever is transmitted to humans by the consumption of contaminated foods and drink, especially milk, butter and cheese. It is also contracted by those slaughterhouse workers, butchers and others who handle infected meat. It is probable it gains entrance through the skin by direct contact, or the infection may result from the eating of food contaminated by unclean hands.

Signs of Disease

Chill and sudden elevation of temperature are the first signs of the disease. The fever may reach 103 degrees or even 105 degrees. The temperature is high in the evening and usually returns to normal in the morning. With the evening fever there are chills and sweating, and gradually an increase in weakness.

It is a strange disease because the victim may feel terribly sick in the evening and appear to be in normal health the next morning. But the unpleasant symptoms return as the hours pass. After about 10 days, however, the morning temperature will be found elevated. In severe cases there will be extreme restlessness, inability to sleep and possibly delirium.

The victim complains of great pain in the muscles and joints. There is always the possibility of serious complications. As a general rule, 50 per cent of the cases recover in eight or 10 weeks. Others go on for several months, or even longer.

Of course, these patients are best cared for in a hospital equipped for the treatment of such disorders. But with improved hygienic attention the disease is under control and rarely met. Safety has been accomplished by enforcing certain simple rules and regulations.

Cattle are periodically inspected for signs of the disease. If found to be present, precautions are taken to guard against spread of the infection.

The evening was spent in a social manner with a lunch a concluding pleasure. Mrs. Brickman received many nice gifts.

DARES TO BAR DEBS FROM COURT PRESENTATION

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

NEW YORK, April 11.—Our new ambassador to England, Joseph P. Kennedy, will go down in history as one of the heroes of United States diplomacy for his daring in discontinuing the presentation of debutantes from this country at the royal court.

This annual rush for glory long has been a nightmare to the American embassy in London, and Washington also has got many a headache out of it.

His excellency has displayed real courage in facing—so to speak—the three hundred pairs of angry eyes belonging to those duchesses of the social register who already had begged to be allowed the rare privilege of curtsying before their majesties this season.

I watched this business at close range for many years, and the average ambassador has been driven almost to distraction by it. Appeals come from people of consequence. Moreover, they generally are supported by a battery of big political names.

The head that wears a crown lies no more uneasy than does that of the unhappy ambassador. Sole responsibility for the selection of names rests with him. Feverish expressions of gratitude from the 30 selected are drowned by the blast of reproaches from the 270 who were turned down.

That is only the beginning of the ambassadorial troubles, however. The embassy has to establish a school for the ladies who are to be presented. The court rules regarding dress and etiquette are very exacting, and most foreigners naturally are unfamiliar with them.

By the time the court arrives, hysteria is in the air and many of the girls are in a state of nervous collapse. The embassy staff likewise.

Danger Still Exists
It might appear that the embassy had undergone enough anguish and finished its job when the debutante had passed through her ordeal without mishap. But not so. The gravest danger frequently has been after the event, rather before it.

Ambassadors long ago discovered that the more excitable debutantes were inclined to give most extraordinary interviews to the press after their experience. The Prince of Wales, for example, most likely would be described as "too sweet for words," while the queen's big Kohinoor diamond produced a starry-eyed ecstasy mainly recorded in surges.

These publications annoyed the royal court no end, and of course were most embarrassing for the ambassadors. Finally one of our envoys—it was General Dawes, as I recall it—put down his foot and made every girl promise not to talk for publication. That had excellent results, though sometimes the fair ones forgot their promises.

Hereafter only families of United States officials in Britain, and Americans who are residents of England, will be considered for presentation. Under the new ruling the embassy wouldn't recommend even the wife of a United States cabinet member.

PHILADELPHIA.—The Philadelphia zoo has acquired a rare albino raccoon. The animal which is entirely white, with pink eyes, was captured in Georgia.

EXTRA FARE

CHAPTER XXIV

He had been the first passenger to stir aboard that morning. Accustomed to a rigid obedience of an alarm clock, he scorned lying in bed until the sun laughed at his slumber. So Jake took advantage of this habit to guarantee that there would be for him no repetition of that first night's experience, the details of which he had not confided to Martha.

Each morning he assured himself privacy in the dressing room by washing, shaving, and washing his celluloid collar long before his fellow passengers began their toilet. The matter of shaving on the speeding, lurching train he anticipated with horror when Martha informed him that he would be obligated to perform that operation en masse. The task grew no simpler with practice and patience. He declared to Martha that he would be a lucky man if he reached the coast with his nose and both ears intact.

With his old-fashioned right-angle razor poised above his face and eyes staring wildly at himself in the mirror, he looked like a man arrested in the act of suicide. He balanced on the balls of his feet and made furtive, daring swoops unto his beard. After each venture, he looked at himself fearfully to see if all his features still projected in the right directions and about gory decorations. Each triumph was a gratifying relief.

All nonsense, anyhow, this shaving himself every day. Once a week was often enough, at home. But Martha had insisted upon the daily ritual because all the other men performed it. Never could see any sense in doing what other people did, just because they did it. And why did they do it? Because others did, he supposed. Well, somebody had to be the first one to stop a thing, hadn't he? He could not figure out why it wasn't just as smart to stop enough to stop a thing as to start it—like this tipping business, for instance.

He was an honest man who paid his honest debts. When he owed a debt, he paid it in full as soon as he knew how much it was. But this thing of having no fixed price for a service was a graft which his sense of justice resented. If they wanted to make a charge for carrying your baggage or serving your meals all right. They certainly didn't neglect to charge for anything else. But to prey upon the dignity of human nature like that was a crime. And he wouldn't buy in. People could think of him whatever they pleased.

Jake was probably the wealthiest passenger aboard the Big Chief, reckoned by the possession of both negotiable property and cash. Certainly he carried more money on his person than any of his companions, and thought little of it. He was accustomed to returning from the markets with huge rolls of currency pinned securely into his pockets. But his clothes were shabby and fashioned of the cheapest materials, and his celluloid collar had done Sunday and holiday service for more than a year. Other men might patronize Fifth Avenue haberdasheries and Bond Street tailors, and live with empty pockets and over-burdened minds. He wore his ill-fitting clothes with their full pockets, and retained a tranquil mind.

Passing through the cars from the diner, after having breakfasted together, Jaxie and Kirby snatched a moment alone on a twaying platform for a verification of the previous night's experience.

"Are you still so happy?" he asked her.

"Oh, so happy, darling!" she assured him.

"No regrets?"

The question startled her and she looked up to meet his eyes with fear. "Why do you ask that?"

"Only because you thought last night that you hadn't known me long enough to trust loving me."

"Can time make any difference. What is done is done. We have love and each other. Nothing can change that."

"I hope not!" he said fervently, kissed her again tenderly, and opened the door into the next car.

In the second passage, they came upon Mervin Gaines and Clarice, who separated hastily as they opened the door. The four exchanged greetings, laughed.

"This must be a honeymoon special," Kirby winked at Gaines and grinned. "If you're not on your honeymoon when you come aboard, you will be before long, eh what?"

"You seem to know," Gaines reported.

He made no move to follow them through the train, detained Clarice. He said, inclining his head toward Kirby and Jaxie as the metal door clanged hollowly after them, "Take my advice if you expect to succeed in my game, and don't mix with everyone you meet. People like those two think it is diplomatic and democratic, and all that, to be sociable with everybody on a train or boat. Just because you are thrown together more or less intimately for a few days, why should you be chummy with people to whom you would never speak in other places? Just because you live in a hotel with a mixture of people for a few days, you don't make friends with them without proper introductions. Queer, how if a man speaks to a woman in a hotel lobby or on a street without an introduction, she is insulted. On a train or steamer, it's all different."

"But," Clarice objected hesitantly, "that is how I met you!"

His deep laugh rumbled tolerantly and he drew her into his arms with a greedy gesture. "Be yourself, baby-eyes. This affair of ours is something else again. There are some special meetings arranged by bow hues, to lose themselves in the menacing shadows below.

Close by, in crevices of the painted walls, and even between the ties of the railroad bed, myriads of flowers brandished their riotous colors to challenge the rocks—blue lichen, pink and white oleander, vivid orange bell flowers. The train flashed suddenly between high white walls of a narrow gorge. Jaxie's eyes lifted to their heights with fascinated interest. She drew a loose-leaf notebook from her purse and jotted down notes across a page.

No longer are such calls regarded as miracles; today they are commonplace for long distance service has become an accepted part of every day life. By the mere lifting of a receiver you hear the sound of a familiar voice and scattered friends and relatives are reunited, news is exchanged, and worry and uncertainty banished.

The telephone management here in Ohio recognizes the importance of a service which gives so much joy, reassurance and satisfaction and is ever alert to see that all new methods and improved equipment are put into use that new standards of speed, clarity and freedom from errors may be set up and the lowest possible rates be maintained.

Cleveland Maple Topplers Finish Low In Tourney

CHICAGO, April 11.—Cleveland's crack bowling teams found competition a bit too tough in the American Bowling Congress tournament yesterday and failed to come close to disturbing the leaders.

In the five men team division, the J. & J. Parkers rolled 2966 as against 3234 which holds the lead for the Chicago Park Brothers aggregation. The Waldorf Lagers scored 2962 in this event. They were the only Cleveland teams to go over the 2900 total.

In the doubles, Ed Ineman and Ed Smith led the Cleveland delegation with a 1229 total. Walter Ward and Eddie Koopp, another Cleveland team, hit 1211.

Torso Slayer's 9th Victim Identified

CLEVELAND, April 11.—While detectives continued today their search for the rest of the Cleveland "torso slayer's" eleventh victim's body, detectives disclosed that they identified the ninth victim.

They also revealed that a heavy-set man had been seen to enter a storm sewer under the high level bridge near where a white woman's amputated leg was found in the Cuyahoga river Friday.

Through bridgework of a skeleton found a short distance upstream in June, 1937, the ninth victim was identified by Detective Peter Merylo as Mrs. Rose Wallace, 40, Negro, who disappeared enroute to a party.

Detectives today investigated the disappearance of 20 women here in recent weeks in the hope of connecting someone with the severed leg of the eleventh victim of the sadistic maniac who is known as R. Gerber says is responsible for the surgical killings.

Inquest Is Ordered In Shotgun Killing

MADISONVILLE, Ky., April 11.—Coroner Carl Hoffman ordered an inquest today into the shotgun killing of a man by a group described by Night Police Chief Ed Kennett as federal agents investigating the $25,000 mail pouch robbery at Guthrie, Ky., Jan. 5.

Kennett said the government agents, meeting the victim as he returned to the home of a girl who had been riding with him, killed him last night with two blasts of buckshot when he refused to put up his hands.

State Police Lieut. Jess Stone declined to reveal the name of the dead man, who appeared to be about 35 years old, but said there was a murder warrant out for his arrest.

State and local police were with the federal agents at the time of the shooting.

The slain man, Kennett said, was carrying a .45 caliber automatic pistol and $736 in cash.

Madisonville police placed no charges in connection with the shooting.

State, Army Probe Airplane Fatality

TOWANDA, Pa., April 11.—State and army officials sought today to determine what caused a new U. S. army airplane to crash near here, killing Lieut. Eugene Brecht, Jr., 28, of Selfridge Field, Mich.

Brecht's body was pulled from the blazing plane by 15-year-old Paul Lareum, son of a farmer on whose land the plane crashed during an early morning storm yesterday.

The boy beat out the fire in the plane's clothing but Brecht was dead. Brecht's home was listed as San Diego, Calif.

THEATER Attractions

Mark Twain's "Adventures of Tom Sawyer" in a technicolor film of the same name appears at the State tonight and Tuesday, with young Tommy Kelly, newest screen find, in the title role.

The story of a typical American small boy, his chores, his sweetheart, his love of adventure and his sorrows has been made into a film that has rated highest praise by the critics.

In the role of Huckleberry Finn, Tom Sawyer's ragged crony, appears Jackie Moran, unforgettable youngster of "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie" and other productions.

May Robson As Aunt Polly, giving a characterization equal in scope to her spitfire grandmother in "A Star Is Born." Walter Brennan, also a holder of an Academy award for his character work, takes the part of Muff Potter, the town derelict.

No mutilation of Mark Twain's story was permitted in the screenplay. The only changes made are those which Twain, a master craftsman in story telling, would have probably made himself, working in the medium of photographs rather than words.

The Grand offers a double bill tonight and Tuesday. The first film is "Condemned Women," in which a modern penitentiary exclusively for women inmates forms the setting for most of the film's action, and save for the male roles, the cast is almost entirely feminine. This unusual factor, and the strongly dramatic plot of romance and sacrifice, are said to make "Condemned Women" one of the season's more notable offerings.

Sally Eilers and Anne Shirley as two young convicts, head the feminine support which features Lee Patrick as a hard-boiled convict leader and Esther Dale as an equally hard-boiled matron. Louis Hayward as the young doctor-hero has the romantic lead opposite Miss Eilers.

The heroine's effort to sever a romance with Hayward, feeling the affair will ruin her career, is a dramatic highlight.

The other picture is a comedy, "He Couldn't Say No," with Frank McHugh, Jane Wyman, Diana Lewis, Cora Witherspoon and Bertie Churchill.

Frank McHugh has the role of an advertising clerk in a large manufacturing plant. In love with the daughter of a senator, a girl whom he has never met, he learns that plans are being made to have him marry one of his co-workers. The plans are being worked out by the office girl's mother.

He buys a statue for which the senator's daughter has posed, and runs into trouble when the senator's political enemies try to buy the figure to blackmail the senator.

But the worm turns and the meek clerk succeeds in getting what he wants.

Rain-Choked Rivers Receding In State

Ohio's rain-choked rivers receded today as clear skies came back to diminish a flood threat created by a week of heavy precipitation.

The Scioto still was out of its banks north of Columbus, particularly in the region of Prospect, Marion county. But other streams generally were within their confines and either on a stand or falling.

The Muskingum reached a crest at Zanesville last night, while the rise of the Walhonding and Tuscarawas rivers at Coshocton was slight that earlier alarm vanished. The Beaver and Mahoning were falling north of New Philadelphia as was the Maumee in the Toledo area.

Writer Is Drowned

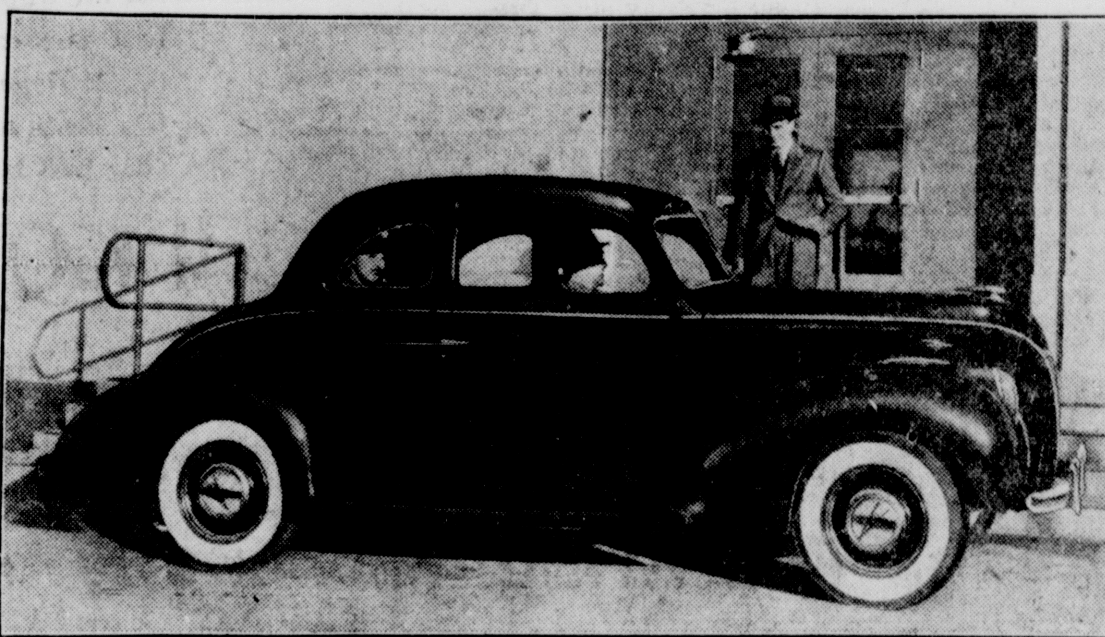

LONDON, April 11.—Chester Bailey Fernald, 69, American born, dramatist and newspaperman, was drowned in Dover harbor when knocked off the auxiliary cutter Florence by a boom last night. Ford Shows 1938 de Luxe Club Coupe

ONE of the most distinctive of the 1938 Ford V-8 body types is the club coupe, pictured above. Offering the advantage of a close-coupled rear seat for two or three occasional passengers, the new type became decidedly popular when introduced a year ago. The front seat cushion is full width, the seat back divided. Either section swings inward as it is tilted forward to allow a wide passageway for entrance to the rear.

Arm rests are provided on the rear seat, and an interior light over the rear window. The car has a large built-in luggage compartment. Like all de Luxe types, it is powered with the 85 horsepower V-8 engine.

McCormick-Deering Milker Has Won Wide Reputation

Many people never saw a modern milking machine, such as the one pictured here, as manufactured by the McCormick-Deering-Mfg. Company. This firm is represented by the Salona Supply Company in this district.

This milker has a great reputation for its features of sanitation, making it possible to produce a high grade of milk with low bacteria count. This machine is the result of years of research and painstaking effort. Its natural action, which tends to increase milk production, contributes to its great popularity among the more progressive dairymen.

PARIS HELPS TO CUT THE COSTS

Cleaned Properly, And With a Few Alterations, That Old Dress Will Look Like New

All this talk of planned economy may be confusing to most of us but there is one thing that is certain, planning will cut costs in most any household. Eastertime means extra expense for spring clothing but a little planning can keep costs much lower, and here is how.

The Paris Cleaners on the Benton road can take that last year's dress and return it to you like new and, with a bit of altering or may be a little new trim-material, your Easter dress is ready at a fraction of the cost of new garments.

Felt hats, gloves, in fact most anything you wear can be cleaned and refinished so well that it would take careful inspection to know that it was not new.

And speaking of economy a careful study has proven that garments that receive regular cleaning at The Paris cleaners do wear much longer, and have that new appearance throughout their life.

It was the worst storm the big liner has encountered.

W. H. Suydam, New York banker, was dozing in a deck chair when a piano in the saloon broke loose and crashed into a wall. He woke up in a tangle of wreckage with a broken arm and a black eye.

REDS MANAGER IN SEARCH OF RIGHT-HANDER

McKechie Seeks Pitcher To Bolster His Mound Staff

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., April 11.—Manager Bill McKechie, sorely disappointed over the showing of his Cincinnati Reds pitching staff, was in the market for a good right-hander today. Paul Derringer is on the sick list, Johnny Vander Meer is having control trouble and Al Hollingsworth has fallen short of training camp expectations.

PADUCAH, Ky.—There was a chance that Hal Schumacher would take Harry Gumbert's allotted spot as the New York Giants' starting pitcher today when they resumed their series with the Cleveland Indians. Schumacher called for relief after six innings his last time out, but Manager Bill Terry still is grooming him for next Tuesday's opener at the Polo Grounds.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.—From Manager Joe Cronin's expression, you'd think the Boston Red Sox pilot was listening to sweet music. He did just that yesterday, when Pinky Higgins blasted two homers and a single and Joe Voornik a four-bagger and a single off the Reds' pitching. There's no sweeter music than that for any manager.

GASTONIA, N. C.—If he keeps hitting, Rookie Max West may be on first base when the Boston Bees open the season next Tuesday against the Giants. The 21-year-old Californian brought a fresh sparkle to the eyes of Manager Casey Stengel as he delivered a home run and two triples yesterday.

PADUCAH, Ky.—Sammy Hale was back on the job today as the Cleveland Indians took up their series with the Giants, and teammates agreed he wasn't fooling when he said his arm had recovered all its old power. After two weeks of rest and treatment, the second baseman is pegging the ball with all the snap and precision he had five years ago.

DALLAS, Tex.—The St. Louis Cardinals met the Texas league Dallas Steers today after holding a one-day "old home week" in Houston, where they whipped the farmhands, 4-3. Dizzy Dean, Lou Warneke, Mike Ryba, Stuart and Pepper Martin, Joe Medwick, Bill McGee, Don Gutteridge and Don Padgett all formerly played for Houston.

Jackson Takes Over Second In Tourney

Coming within one pin of a tie for first place in the Masonic temple headpin bowling tournament, Jim Jackson of the Salem News team of the National league rolled games of 111, 110 and 108 for a 329 total at the temple alleys Saturday night.

Tom Reese holds the lead in the No. 1 pin event with a score of 330 made on games of 112, 107 and 111. Jackson's mark is good for second place while Harry Calladine is in third position with 323. Calladine also holds fourth place with 320.

Win Cage Tourney

CHICAGO, April 11.—Sacred Heart of Akron, O., defeated Buffalo, N. Y., 45 to 30, last night to win the sixth annual national Polish Roman Catholic union basketball tournament.

CLEVELAND—Charles Storm, 53, shot himself fatally because he was refused credit at a butcher shop. The butcher told police that he had explained to Storm that he could not extend him credit for any more meat, because he was in debt himself, so Storm went into a next door washroom and fired five bullets into his head.

Mirrors And Dry Diving Produce Ohio Swim Team

National A. A. U. Champions Developed by Mike Peppe With His Own Training Methods

BY J. N. FUEGLEIN
COLUMBUS, April 11.—Top-notch swimming teams are produced with the aid of mirrors and "dry diving," believes youthful Coach Mike Peppe who piloted a bunch of Ohio State university sophomores and juniors to the first National A. A. U. senior championship won by a college squad.

Peppe, who pronounces his name "Peppey" and lives up to the appellation, uses large mirrors at the end of his training pool to correct form faults in his swimmers and has sand-pits under his diving boards to save time.

Seven years ago he faced the task of forming the first swimming team for Ohio State, his Alma Mater, with only two obstacles to hinder him: No material and no pool.

He used a Y. M. C. A. pool until Ohio State's modern manatorium was built. Gradually his material improved until last year his proteges captured seconds in both the Big Ten and the national intercollegiate meets.

This year they won the Big Ten meet, were named out of the intercollegiate title by one point after defeating Michigan, the winner three times previously, and gave the Bucks their first national title last Saturday in the A. A. U. meet, which until then had been dominated by the Athletic clubs.

Next year? Oh boy!
We'll lose Jim Patterson, who was just named out by Al Patnik in the three meter dive," said Peppe, "but I have high hopes that Earl Clark and Gee Karst, members of the fresh squad, will fill this gap. All other members of the varsity will be back."

Clark, from Miami, Fla., placed fourth in the event Saturday and Peppe predicted that he eventually would compete in the Olympics.

Peppe is not an advocate of the "learn to swim without going into the water" school. The sand-pit is used mostly in the fall and only occasionally during the season.

"We use the sand-pit in a constant effort to perfect technique, then we use the pool for actual conditioning. No matter how good a swimmer's form is, his condition is just as important. A lot of swimmers with poor form can win just because they're in top condition."

In the A. A. U. meet, Patnik rounded out a "grand slam" of the country's No. 1 amateur diving title, taking two firsts.

The Buck sophomore now holds the Big Ten, intercollegiate, and both the A. A. U. indoor and outdoor highboard championships and was the first to make a sweep of the competitions.

Ohio State won the title with 41 points. Michigan had 19½, Princeton 18½.

List Grid Card

YOUNGSTOWN, April 11.—Dr. Castle Peard, athletic director of Youngstown college, announced today an eight-game football schedule for the college next fall—the first season of football for the college. The only Ohio teams on the schedule are Western Reserve and John Carroll, both of Cleveland.

Carries The Mail

CINCINNATI, April 11.—William E. Sheppard, who received his legs carrying the U. S. mail, walked the 15-mile handicap race of the A. A. U. in two hours and 52 minutes yesterday to take first place.

YANKEES' HOPES FOR FLAG REST WITH DI MAGGIO

Castleman Is Key Player To Giants, Although Not a Holdout

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK, April 11.—One week before the umpires get out their whisk brooms, the baseball fore-casters are beginning to feel an active sympathy for the weather man, who predicted "fair and warmer" for the day last week that saw five inches of snow settle on Manhattan.

Even the most redoubtable of the old-line experts are putting off their pennant picks as long as possible, or else they are naming the Yankees and Giants to repeat and then filling up the remainder of the column with "ifs."

Almost equally responsible for this uncertain state of affairs are two young men, Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees and Clyde L. Castleman of the Giants. DiMaggio still refuses to report to the Yanks for any such insignificant salary as $25,000 a year. Castleman has reported to the Giants, all right, but he refuses to pitch.

The Yanks, with DiMaggio in the fold and satisfied, would be overwhelming favorites for their third straight American league championship. If Joe still is conducting his fish-and-chips shop a week from today, when the Rupperts open their season, the race automatically becomes a dinger, with the Cleveland Indians this writer's choice.

The case of Castleman and the Giants is almost as clean-cut. It has become obvious that Bill Terry will need a barrelful of luck to beat out Charlie Grimm's Chicago Cubs unless he produces another starting pitcher, and a winning one at that.

A month ago Terry thought that Tom Baker would fill the role, and he didn't care at that time whether Castleman and his lame back reported or not. But since that time Baker has flopped, and Hal Schumacher went to pieces in the middle of a game the other day.

This leaves the Giants with a total of two dependable pitchers. Carl Hubbell and Slim Molton. They are the two best southpaws in the National league, and all that, but they need help. Castleman, a potential 20-game winner, looks like the only answer.

Late last season Castleman underwent a delicate operation on his back. According to the doctors, he came out of it a well man. But Castleman, who insists that he knows more about himself than anybody else, refused to report and he ignored the caustic messages he received from Terry. Now he has joined the club, but he's taking things easy and says he might not be ready to pitch for a couple of months.

It must be a sort of judgment on Terry. Since he took over from the late John McGraw, the Giants have been singularly free of individualists.

Castleman alone has refused to submit to Terry's will. Two seasons ago Terry, with the explicit approval of Owner Horace Stoneham, forced his willful right-hander to stay in the box and take an awful beating from Cincinnati for nine innings. He called it "discipline." Last season he sent Castleman to Jersey City to cure his "laziness." The boy came back to win 11 games before his lame back forced him to quit.

And now Castleman appears to hold the fate of the Giants in his hands. If he is well again and Terry can talk him into pitching, pick the Giants. If not, how do you like those Cubs?

NEW YORK, April 11.—A couple of years ago, a Tulane alumnus spotted Ernie Lain and Allie Cordill in high school, and figured he'd try to get 'em for his Alma Mammy. . . . But Tulane changed coaches about that time, Red Dawson got Ted Cox's job, and the alumnus didn't know if Red would be interested, so he let both lads get away. . . . Now they're a pair of go-to-town touch-down twins at Rice—and Red's tearing his hair trying to figure out how to stop 'em next fall.

ST. LOUIS CLUB DEFEATED ONLY ONCE TO DATE

Browns Lead Pre-Season Standings With 17 Wins, One Loss

NEW YORK, April 11.—Although they sustained their first defeat of the spring training schedule in their first encounter with big league opposition, Gabby Street's St. Louis Browns today still are king-pins of the Grapefruit league. That one trimming, by the Chicago Cubs, is the lone blot on the Browns' 18-game record. Since their closest rivals, the Pittsburgh Pirates and Detroit Tigers, each have lost five games, and the opening of the major league campaigns is only a week away, it's a record that's likely to make the St. Louisians champions of the citrus circuit for 1938.

THIS 106 ACRES HAS BEEN REDUCED TO HALF PRICE!

This farm is known as the Harvey Goodman farm and is located on the main road to Youngstown; about 4 miles from Salem. This farm has been in the owner's hands for a generation or more and the land has been well cared for. It is in a high state of cultivation and has an abundance of good water; running water in the pasture and water in all of the buildings. It is improved with a tip-top, 10-room house which is suitable for two families. This house, if not needed for two families, is well adapted to take care of tourists, and if handled right, would make more money than the farm. It also has a 5-room tenant house with electricity. A large tank barn and large straw shed, also wired. Chicken house large enough to take care of 2,000 layers. This farm is really in a class by itself and I cannot say enough to do justice to it. Price $12,000. We are pricing this farm at the cost of the one house, giving you the 106 acres of land, the big tank barn, another 5-room house and outbuildings. So, if you are interested, investigate this at once.

The most exacting buyer will be delighted with this modern home. It is extremely well-built and is right up to date in every respect. If you are interested, see me at once; for this new bungalow will not be on the market long at our amazingly low price of $4,000.

U.S. Supreme Court's
Chief Justice Is 76

WASHINGTON, April 11—Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice of the United States, became 76 years old today.

Since he was appointed by President Hoover in 1930, he has not missed a day from work on account of illness. He appears to be in robust health.

Although he is eligible to retire on full pay of $20,500 a year, there has been no indication that he had given any thought to such action. He said a few months ago that he did not intend to retire.

Only two justices older than Hughes remain on the tribunal. They are Brandeis, 81, and McReynolds, who is 76.
